THE HISTORY OF THE CITY OF BOSTON

The city of Boston, situated on a neck of land between the harbor and the bay, was first settled by a small number of Englishmen in 1630. The city grew rapidly, and by 1690 it was one of the largest and most important cities in the colonies. The city was the center of the revolutionary movement, and it was here that the Declaration of Independence was signed. The city was also the site of the Boston Tea Party, and it was here that the British soldiers were killed in the Battle of the Clouds. The city was the center of the abolitionist movement, and it was here that the first anti-slavery society was founded. The city was also the site of the first public school, and it was here that the first public library was established. The city was the center of the industrial revolution, and it was here that the first factory was built. The city was also the site of the first railroad, and it was here that the first steam locomotive was run. The city was the center of the civil rights movement, and it was here that the first anti-segregation law was passed. The city was also the site of the first anti-apartheid law, and it was here that the first anti-homophobia law was passed. The city was the center of the environmental movement, and it was here that the first anti-pollution law was passed. The city was also the site of the first anti-nuclear law, and it was here that the first anti-globalization law was passed. The city was the center of the peace movement, and it was here that the first anti-war law was passed.
